Director of Experiment Station Says Animals Are Exceedingly Destructive.

SUGGESTS FORMULA FOR MIXTURE OF POISONS

Dr. Ball Points Out Necessity for Prompt Action by Dry

Declaring war on the short-tailed squirrels that work havoc with the crops in the dry farming territory, Dr. E. D. Ball, director of the experiment station at Logan, has issued a circular giving directions on the best manner in which to go about exterminating the pests. He calls special attention to the need of early action and shows how these animals are a menace to the proper development of this industry. His formulas are said to do the work where tried and if followed as directed farmers can soon rid the land of the little enemies to their crops. What Dr. little enemies to their crops. What Dr Ball has to say on the subject follows

Ball has to say on the subject follows:

There was an immense amount of damage done to grain and crops on the dry farms of this state last year by the short-tailed squirrels, or ground dogs. At the time that the damage was being done numerous inquiries came in as to methods of destroying this pest. At that season of the year, however, when food is abundant, it is difficult to do anything with them, and those interested were advised to wait until spring and then take up the warfare against these pests. As soon as the snow is off the ground in the spring the squirrels appear and begin to prepare their nests for the raising of a large broad of young. At this time food is scarce and poison grain is readily eaten.

There is no time to be lost now, however, and anyone who has suffered any oss in the past from these pests should proceed at once to prepare the fellowing pixture and apply it thoroughly:

Dissolve the strychnine in boiling wa-er, then stir in the grain, stirring thor-ughly until all of the grain has been qually dampened and all the water ab-orbed. Then prepare the following mix-ure.
